

Dixie Theatre Sold
The Dixie Theatre Changes Hands

The Choctaw Herald June 15, 1911 - transcribed by Ron Henson

Christman & Fickenger, who came here about a year ago and took charge of the Dixie Theatre, on Duke street, this week sold the business to J. Thornton, of Bokhoma and K.E. Helm, of Valliant. Messrs. Christman & Fickenger have built up a nice show business with the Dixie and Hugo people regret to see them retire from the management of the house, although we are assured the new management are perfect gentlemen and good business men, and they will continue the business along the lines established by the popular show house.

Messrs. Christman & Fickinger have not decided what they will do and are still in the city, and we hope will decide to remain in Hugo.
